ABSTRACT

Prepared for use by agencies working with migrant and seasonal farmworkers, this directory lists programs, services, and resources available to these farmworkers in the Northeastern states of Connecticut, Delaware, Maine, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New York, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, and Vermont. Obtained from Federal, State, and local agencies in the various states, special emphasis was placed on information and data current as of summer 1974. Information is given for each state on: (1) programs; (2) crops and work periods; (3) migrant population and wages by county; (4) labor camps; and (5) supplementary information such as information sources and State exhibits depicting county distribution and State relation to the national migratory patterns. Programs listed provide basic educational, health, legal, and job placement services to farmworkers. Some of the listings of organizations, programs or agencies may contain some obsolete information due to their: instability, being subject to change as new needs, priorities and objectives appear; or as operating funds expire. Information obtained from Federally funded agencies and programs in Puerto Rico during February 1974 is also given. (NQ)

October, 1974

Dear Sir(s):

This directory of programs and services available to migrant and seasonal farmworkers in the Northeastern States is one of several in the Comprehensive National Survey of Migrant Programs series. The entire series will cover all the states in the mainland. The Commonwealth of Puerto Rico is included in this publication.

These directories are compiled for use by agencies working with migrant and seasonal farmworkers. It is our objective that in the utilization of this directory, the awareness of programmatic needs and services of the farmworker will be increased.

Our goal has been and continues to be the creation of a greater sense of community among agencies seeking to serve the migrant and seasonal farmworker nationwide.

Sincerely,

INTRODUCTION

MIGRANT PROGRAMS IN CONNECTICUT, DELAWARE,
MAINE, MASSACHUSETTS,
NEW HAMPSHIRE, NEW JERSEY,
NEW YORK, PENNSYLVANIA,
RHODE ISLAND, VERMONT,
(SPECIAL SECTION) PUERTO RICO

The purpose of this book is to consolidate under one cover a listing of all services and resources available to migrant farmworkers during their stay in the states herein included. The staff of the National Migrant Information Clearinghouse has endeavored to make this directory as complete and as accurate as possible. However, some of the listings of organizations, programs or agencies may contain some obsolete information after the printing date. Although many programs have the stability of long term and established services, others are often short-lived or constantly subject to change as new needs, priorities and objectives appear or as operating funds expire.

Information for this directory was obtained entirely from federal, state and local agencies in the various states. Only programs actually in existence at the time the information was collected have been included, but due to the lag time between gathering information and then publishing it, an effort was made to keep astride of all farm labor developments in these states during this time. Special emphasis was placed in obtaining only information and data current as of summer 1974. There are several reasons why this was not always possible. Many organizations, particularly state agencies, do not normally summarize their service activities until the end of each calender year. Still others provided less than full cooperation to Clearinghouse staff, or did not cooperate at all. As a result, some of the information had to be obtained from secondary sources.

This directory is therefore only as accurate as the information which was provided by the sources contacted. A sincere effort has been made to authenticate as much of the information that appears in this book as possible. However, the limited time and resources available for this project virtually rendered impossible the verification of every item of information.

The Department of Labor-Migration Division represents the Puerto Rican farmworkers in the U.S. mainland through all facets of state, federal and local labor relations.

Each year a contract is negotiated between the Department of Labor-Commonwealth of Puerto Rico and a representative of the Local Growers Association. The contract covers a variety of areas including wages, living and working conditions, health insurance and workmen's compensation. The Commonwealth of Puerto Rico and the Secretary of Labor of Puerto Rico are responsible for the enforcement and execution of the terms of the contract.

Other functions of DOL-CPR include periodic inspection of labor camps, orientation of the growers and Puerto Rican farmworkers, transfer of workers to work sites and on going coordination with the State and federal agency serving the rural farmworkers.

The goal of Title I, Migrant Education is to identify and meet the special needs of the migrant student. To realize this goal, a special curriculum is used to enable the migrant child to reach a satisfactory academic level.

The curriculum in the Connecticut Title I, Migrant Education Program includes mathematics, language development, science, reading, social studies and tutorial services. Physical education, summer sports, field trips and summer camp supplement the educational component of this program.

The Summer Enrichment Program runs for six weeks and is primarily academically oriented. An outdoor education approach "school without walls" is used in part of the program.

The Individual Instruction Program is a diagnostic-prescriptive approach to teaching school age migrants within the regular school year. Tutoring is provided to the migrant child.

The Early Childhood Education goal is to enable the child of migrant parents to enter public school at the same educational level as other children of the same age.

The Tobacco Camp Program operates on the labor camp sites in Hartford County, providing outdoor recreation and physical activities, sports, counseling and health education.

Ancillary activities of the program seek to identify and meet the nutritional and medical needs of the migrant child.

Service Area: Aroostook County
Migrant Population Served: 165 (September-June, 1973)
80 (September-November, 1973)

ESEA Title I, Maine Migrant Project (MMP) is designed to meet the most pressing educational and health needs of migrant children.

Basic creativity skills in arts and crafts, as well as reading and math instruction are provided under MMP's educational program.

The health program is concentrated on the following: Physical and eye examinations, dental screening and work, scalp and skin treatment, referrals and follow-up.

Services are available throughout the year except for the month of July, five days a week, from 8:30 a.m. to 3:00 p.m. at the following schools:

County	School
AROOSTOOK	Easton Schools Fort Fairfield, Maine 04742 (207) 476-5641

The Maine Department of Manpower Affairs, Employment Security Division (MDMA/ESC) acts as the registrar and clearance office for contract labor involving migrant and seasonal farmworkers.

Their services generally include farm and non-farm job placement, aptitude testing, counseling, job training, referrals and relating information concerning jobs to applicants.

In a correspondence with the MDMA/ESC Director, comment is made with regard to migrant and seasonal farmworkers:

> "None of these migrant groups come as far north as Maine. This is primarily due to two factors: (1) with the exception of apples and blueberries, the majority of Maine's crops have been fully mechanized, thus substantially reducing the requirements for hand labor; and (2) the short duration of the harvest period (6 to 8 weeks) occurring during the months of September and October does not make it worthwhile for migrant crews to accept employment in the State of Maine. A limited number of bonded Canadians were used in our 1973 potato harvest in Aroostook County. Likewise, approximately 350 British West Indians and Canadians were employed in the apple harvest. Neither of these ethnic groups can be construed as migratory workers according to the United States Department of Labor's criteria of what constitutes a migrant worker."

In addition to the foreign workers, there are a few migrant and seasonal farmworkers from the surrounding States that take part in harvesting the potato crop.

MDMA/ESC operates throughout the year, Monday through Friday, from 8:00 a.m. until 5:00 p.m. at the following offices:

Dear Mr. Martinez:

Pursuant to our telephone conversation Friday, February 22, 1974, as requested by you, we are providing data relating to wages paid in both the apple and potato harvests. Moreover, we are also providing numbers of foreign workers used by crop and the counties in which these respective harvests occur.

Most commercial apple producers are located in the counties of Androscoggin, Cumberland, Kennebec, Oxford, Penobscot, Somerset and York. There were 95 British West Indians and 271 Canadians employed. The rate of pay was $.30 per bushel for both spot and strip picking.

The bulk of potato acreage is planted in Aroostook County. A total of 431 bonded Canadians were employed. The rate of pay was $.30 per barrel.

If we can be of further assistance, please do not hesitate to contact us.

Very truly yours,

Wm R Malloy

The Title I Migrant Education Program in Massachusetts seeks to identify and meet the needs of migrant and seasonal farmworker students.

In realizing this goal, special curriculum is created to enable the student to reach a satisfactory academic level. Curriculum in the Title I program focuses on basic skills development, including Spanish curriculum, enrichment through arts, crafts, music and periodic field trips. Physical education activities include organized sports, swimming, and free play.

Morning snacks, lunches and afternoon snacks are provided through the nutrition component of the Title I program.

Vocational training is also available to the students, along with academic tutoring in any subject area upon request.

Service sites are located throughout the State at the following locations:

The Migrant Division of the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico Department of Labor represents the Puerto Rican migrants while they are working in the U.S. mainland. This agency along with the Puerto Rico Labor Department and a representative of the Growers Association meet yearly to negotiate a new contract for migrant labor.

Wages, living conditions, health insurance and workmen's compensation are stipulated in the contract. This agency works to insure compliance with the contract.

Auxiliary services administered by this agency include facilitating communication between migrants and their families, supervising migrant transportation, inspection of labor camps and providing orientation to Puerto Rican migrants. The Migrant Division also promotes agricultural employment and enhances labor relations with State and federal governments and the growers.

New England Farmworkers Council (NEFWC)
3502 Main Street
Springfield (Hampden County), Massachusetts 011707
(413) 736-4525

Funding Sources: U.S.D.H.E.W., U.S.D.O.L., Title III-B
Service Area: Hartford County (Connecticut) Franklin, Hampden and Hampshire Counties (Massachusetts)
Migrant Population Served: 2,100 (peak number)

The New England Farmworkers Council (NEFWC) renders many varied services to migrants in the areas of manpower, education, health, communications, activities in Puerto Rico, co-operatives and transportation.

The manpower component of NEFWC screens and matches workers with job and training opportunities and activities with Area Manpower Planning Committees to assess and promote job opportunities for farmworkers. Job opportunities are developed through employers, coalitions and consortiums and JABS-JOBS programs. Follow-up visits with clients and employers are done periodically. The manpower component strives to place farmworkers in HEP programs in Puerto Rico and New England, and to place them in vocational training programs such as MDTA and CEP.

The Council's educational services consist of Basic Pre-vocational Education classes geared toward providing skills necessary to seek jobs outside of agriculture. Among the courses offered to workers in the farm labor camps are English-as-a-Second Language, drivers education, literacy in Spanish and communication skills.

Under a grant from U.S.D.H.E.W., the health program under NEFWC provides comprehensive medical and emergency dental care to farmworkers. The program strives to reduce the barriers of accessibility to health services and to provide for the participation of farmworkers in planning, policy-making, and evaluation of the health program.

The health services provided are delivered through contracts with local health agencies. Services available include physical examinations, X-rays, emergency dental care, fee-for-service medical care, eye and skin treatment.

The communications component publishes a four-page Spanish newspaper weekly during the agricultural season and bi-monthly during the off-season. This newspaper seeks to inform the workers in the cities and the camps of job and training opportunities, services available through NEFWC and community services.

Activities in Puerto Rico include development of working ties with government departments of the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico; orientation of farmworkers of working conditions in New England and their civil rights before they leave the island.

The co-operatives component of NEFWC has established, in cooperation with the Co-operative Development Administration of Puerto Rico, a credit savings co-operative for farmworkers residing in labor camps and the cities. The credit savings co-operative is studying possibilities for expansion into a multiple services co-operative.

The transportation component operates six mini-buses to facilitate delivery of agency services to the dispersed and isolated camps in the service area.

The Council operates year-round, five days a week, eight hours a day during the off-season and twelve hours a day during the agricultural season (March 1 to November 30).

The New England Farmworkers Council has regional offices at the following locations:

MIGRANT PROGRAMS IN NEW HAMPSHIRE

NEW HAMPSHIRE *

According to the State Department of Education, the State Employment Security Department, and the Maine Department of Education, there are no migrants in New Hampshire. What migrants do exist in the state are privately recruited.

The migrants that do work in southern New Hampshire as a rule are male adults from Canada, Jamaica, and Puerto Rico. Their paramount employment is in apple harvesting from about September to November, which compensates hourly about $2.32 to $2.75. The majority of the apple labor force is contracted and lodging is provided by the growers. The growers do their own recruiting and contracting, provide their own health services, and provide any necessary services to the migrants.

New Hampshire and Maine have a co-op program. As a result, New Hampshire's ESEA Title I-Migrant Education is administered by Maine Department of Education. Another aspect of this agreement was a survey conducted by Maine Department of Education to identify migrant children in New Hampshire. The study indicated the absence of migrant children in New Hampshire. Therefore, New Hampshire's Title I, Migrant Education monies are being utilized by Maine's Migrant Education Program. Upon the discovery of migrant children in the state by the New Hampshire Department of Education, Maine will implement a program in that state.

*The above information is non-conclusive, based on the best available data.

DIRECT MIGRANT PROGRAMS

Department of Labor Migration Division of the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico
333 Arch Street
Camden (Camden County) New Jersey 08102
(609) 964-2043

Funding Sources: Department of Labor of the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico
Service Area: States of Maryland, New Jersey (Southern), Pennsylvania, South Carolina, Virginia and Delaware
Migrant Population Served: 4,347

The Migrant Division of the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico Department of Labor represents the Puerto Rican migrants while they are working in the U.S. Mainland. This agency along with the Puerto Rico Labor Department and a representative of the Grower's Association meet yearly to negotiate a new contract for migrant labor.

Wages, living conditions, health insurance and workmen's compensation are stipulated in the contract. This agency works to insure compliance with the contract.

Auxiliary services administered by this agency include facilitating communication between migrants and their families, supervising migrant transportation, inspection of labor camps and providing orientation to Puerto Rican migrants. The Migrant Division also promotes agricultural employment and enhances labor relations with state and federal governments and the growers.

ESEA Title I, Migrant Education
Office of Migrant Education (OME)

Funding Sources: U.S.D.H.E.W.
Service Area: Atlantic, Burlington, Camden, Cape May, Cumberland, Gloucester, Middlesex, Monmouth, and Salem Counties
Migrant Population Served: 4,500 (OME - 1972-73)

New Jersey Migrant Education programs are conducted throughout the State from preschool through high school to help migrant children improve personal goals, increase academic skills, obtain health benefits, acquire vocational skills, gain cultural enrichment and develop recreational interests.

The priority areas of the program include individualized instruction, health and nutrition, English as a second language (ESL), special education, vocational education and inservice training.

OME provides comprehensive health services that include physical examinations, immunizations, dental health care, nutritional services, eye and ear health services and correction of physical defects.

The agency also provides services through mobile units, consultants and inservice training sessions.

The three mobile units involved in the direct delivery of services are the Vocational Education Van (VE), Eye Mobile (EM) and Dental Care Unit (DC). The VE features programs which offer practical experiences in various fields of study. The EM provides complete eye examinations and evaluations of eye problems as well as diagnosis and referrals for corrections.

Consultant services are offered in the areas of program development, multi-media, staff training, Puerto Rican culture, dissemination and early childhood education.

Another function of OME is to conduct inservice training through workshops for principals, teachers, nurses, aides, recruiters and clerks.

This program also develops some of its own educational materials and has cooperated in establishing and maintaining the South-Jersey Educational Improvement Materials Center (SJEIMC). The main function of SJEIMC is to make educational materials available to both migrant and non-migrant schools.

Farmworkers Corporation of New Jersey (FCNJ)
5 South State Street
Vineland (Cumberland County), New Jersey 08360
(609) 691-7101

Funding Sources: U.S.D.O.L. and Migrant Seasonal Farmworkers Association, Inc.
Service Area: Atlantic, Cape May, Cumberland, Gloucester, Salem and portions of Camden Counties
Migrant Population Served: 5,000 (includes seasonal farmworkers)

The Farmworkers Corporation is a private non-profit corporation representing approximately 9,000 farmworkers in the South New Jersey area during peak-season. Founded in 1972, FCNJ's major goal is to upgrade farmworkers through its manpower and economic development programs as well as through various social services, including out-reach, referrals, counseling, day care, and emergency food and housing.

This agency provides a variety of services to migrant families through its main office, two area offices and four day care centers.

The Social Services Program involves contacting over 1,500 farmworkers annually who disseminate information at the labor camps, make referrals and job placements and provide emergency services.

Another aspect of the program is counseling the farmworkers to discover problem areas. They deal primarily with the difficulties which the farmworkers have in attaining a stable situation in society. Once they are placed, the counselors follow up to ensure that placements and referrals are successful and meaningful.

The Day Care Program provides services to those farmworkers who are enrolled in the FCNJ Pre-vocational Program as well as in other training programs. Futhermore, day care services are provided for those who are placed on jobs.

The four FCNJ Day Care Centers are housed in permanent facilities in Hammonton, Landisville, Vineland and Woodstown. They have complete kitchen facilities and with these prepare a hot meal and two snacks daily.

Many farmworkers are placed directly in jobs or are referred to other training programs such as MDTA, Job Corp and those offered by private industry.

FCNJ provides a pre-vocational training program which enables farmworkers to learn basic job-related English, drivers education and the responsibilities that go with a full-time job.

The basic purpose of the Economic Development Program under FCNJ is to create or sustain enterprises which will either promote ownership or employment among farmworkers.

FCNJ has a revolving loan fund which can provide seed monies to small businesses, cooperatives, and other programs promoting employment so that they can seek additional funding through public and private lending agencies. FCNJ considers those ventures which have a significant impact on the economic situation of farmworkers as a group. It backs only those which stand a good chance of success, as determined by a feasibility study.

This agency has two additional service sites which provide the same services year-round, Monday through Friday, 8:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. at these locations:

The Farmworker Division of CRLS serves the migrant farm labor population of a six-county area. The target population includes: 1) the worker who migrates to New Jersey on a seasonal basis from other States (A special program dealing with day-haul workers was begun under the supervision of a bi-lingual staff worker - funded by the State of New Jersey, the effort is designed to study and develop solutions to the problems of farmworkers who are brought in from neighboring Pennsylvania on a daily basis); 2) the New Jersey resident who works on local farms and; 3) the contract carrying Puerto Rican laborers who work in this state under a specially organized plan arranged between the Department of Labor of the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico and several grower's associations in the continental United States.

CRLS employs lawyers who can give advice or file litigation against abuses on such legal matters as wages, payroll deductions, social security, housing, health, food stamps and the Puerto Rican Contract.

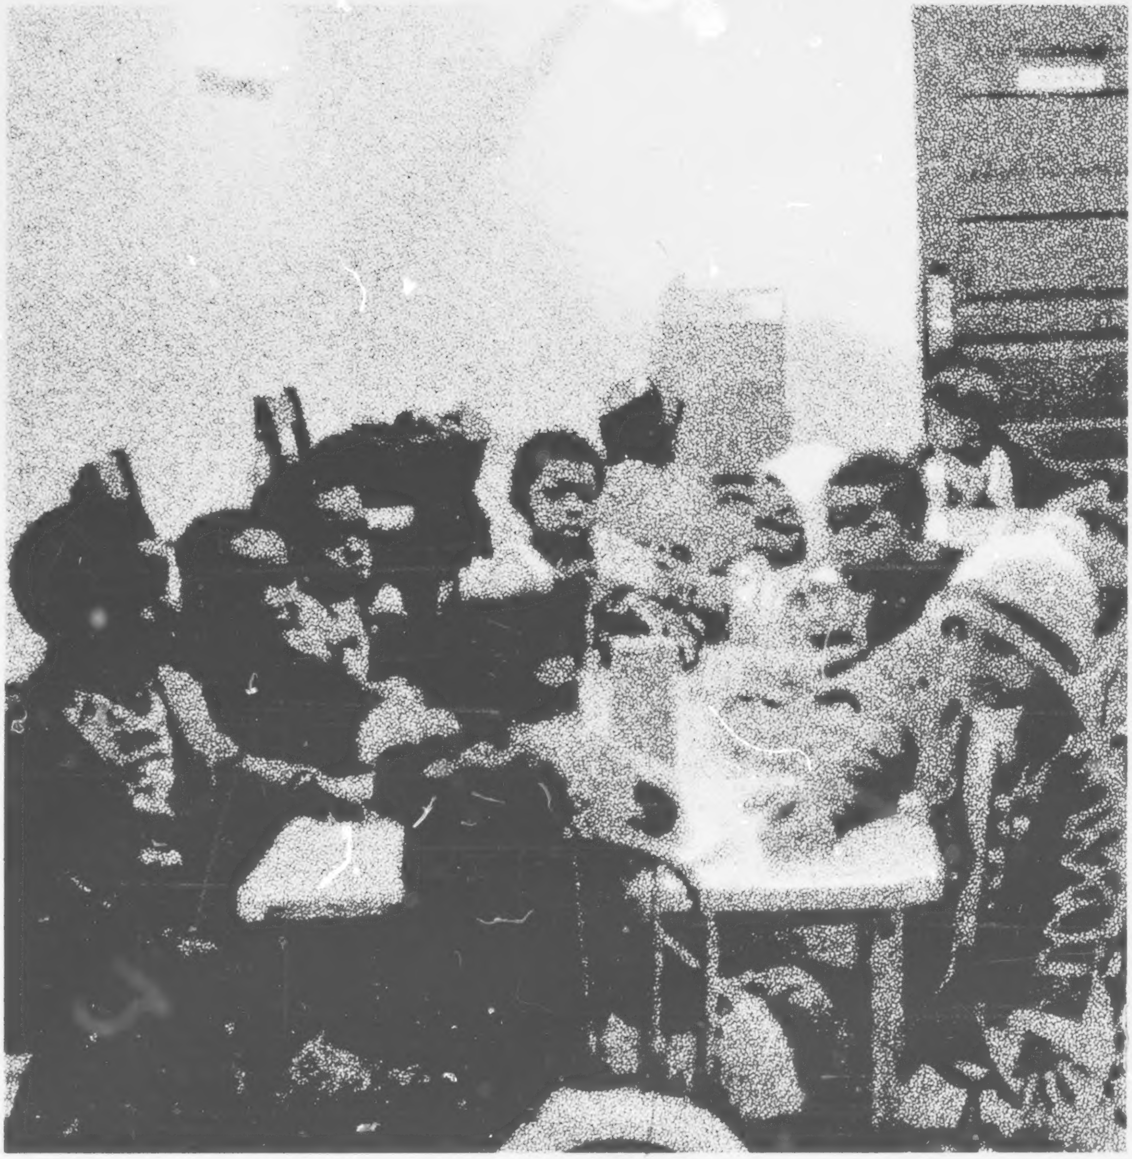
The Bureau inspects housing and related facilities provided for migrant, seasonal or temporary workers. Enforcement of the Seasonal Farm Labor Act is a primary responsibility which includes certification of migrant labor camps and advisory services to employers as to ways and means of improving living conditions of migrant workers. The Bureau is also responsible for registering the crew leaders in the State. Additionally, the Bureau is responsible for cooperating with other appropriate State agencies in providing comprehensive services for migrant workers.



In addition to the foregoing programs, the following also provide services to migrants:*

ATLANTIC COUNTY

Hammonton Outreach Center - Referrals and youth outreach. Cooperated with Farm-workers Corp.

CAMDEN COUNTY

COPRA-Camden Puerto Rican Service Agency - referrals and job development is main thrust.

CUMBERLAND COUNTY

Apostolic Center - A Bridgeton agency offering crisis food, clothing, fuel, etc.

Barse Foundation - Service in Vineland through grants for social or education purposes.

Community Migrant Ministry, Bridgeton - Offers transient house for seasonal workers.

NJ Migrant & Seasonal Workers Information Center - (Bureau of Migrant Labor) Bridgeton office refers migrants for help. Also accumulates data on migrants; seeks base for future helping programs.

NJ Rehabilitation Commission - Working relation to Farm-workers Corp. Offers referrals.

Puerto Rican Action Comm. of Vineland. - Operates a mini-bus for referral program.

GLOUCESTER COUNTY

Glassboro Service Assoc. Inc. A subsidary of the Farm Bureau (Statewide farmers organization) - They recruit the contract Puerto Rican Workers from the Commonwealth and place workers.

MERCER COUNTY

Family Service Agency of Princeton (Hightstown Office) - Operates bargain basement store in Cranbury, sponsors recreation programs; provides transport; sponsors dinners for migrants.

Rutgers Extension Service - Nutrional project with Farmworkers Corp.

MIGRANT PROGRAMS IN NEW YORK

A. MIGRANT PROGRAMS FOR MIGRANT AND SEASONAL FARMWORKERS IN NEW YORK

DIRECT MIGRANT PROGRAMS

ESEA Title I, Migrant Education
Bureau of Migrant Education (Administration)
Education Building Annex
Albany (Albany County), New York 12224
(518) 474-4331

Funding Sources: U.S.D.H.E.W.; State Bureau of Migrant Education (BME)
Service Area: Albany, Chautauqua, Clinton, Columbia, Dutchess, Erie, Genesee, Herkimer, Livingston, Madison, Monroe, Niagara, Oneida, Ontario, Orange, Orleans, Oswego, Putnam, Rockland, Steuben, Suffolk, Ulster and Wayne Counties
Migrant Population Served: 6,600 (1973)

The Bureau of Migrant Education Title I, Migrant Education in the State of New York funds studies, census, special programs and other related educational projects that might assist the migrant student population.

Every migrant student is given a medical and dental examination with medical attention if necessary. Some school programs have medical assistance from Migrant Health Projects or County Health facilities and existing school medical facilities.

Health services also include immunizations, preventative care, follow-ups, plus health instructions covering care of the teeth, proper diets and the importance of proper hygiene.

Hot meals and snacks are given to migrants who are in day care centers and school; either in the school facilities or day care center.

The school programs in New York vary intensively with their curriculum and nature of the classes. Some schools have pre-kindergarten, day care, elementary, secondary and adult education. Each school program has a unique facet of education depending on the goals of a particular program.

The curriculum for migrant summer schools consists of math, English, bilingual education and the communication skills of reading and speaking. Mobile units visit labor camps furnishing education material to members of the migrant family. Field trips and recreational activities are included during school hours.

School buses are contracted to take migrant children at the camp sites to and from school.

The bureau encourages broader participation of parents in school related functions including participation in local Parent Advisory Committees.

The Bureau of Migrant Education runs school programs throughout the year, beginning with the Fall Compensatory Program (September - December - each season) where the migrants are in the regular school session. They are given remedial and tutorial help with math and English as the main subjects of concentration. The services that are available for migrant students can be found within the regular school program facilities, such as physician, nurse and meals. The Spring Compensatory Program is similar to the fall, with the exception that less migrant students are enrolled. The summer school program is the highlight of the Bureau of Migrant Education devoting more funds in which the program runs from July to August, (6-8 weeks). Day care centers are available for the migrant child while the parents work in the fields.

The migrant school programs are assisted by several state and local agencies, such as: (1) Cooperative Extension (2) Social Services (3) Migrant Ministry (4) Title III B programs (5) Migrant Health agencies and (6) local agencies.

The Day Care Center's hours of operation are different from the school program's.

Day Care Center - 8:00 a.m. - 5:00 p.m. (Monday - Friday)
Summer, Fall, Spring - 9:00 a.m. - 3:00 p.m. (Monday - Friday)

The Bureau of Migrant Education also funds Universities and the New York State Migrant Center in Geneseo to conduct teacher training and studies in migrant education.

The training involves migrant teachers and paraprofessionals with those classroom practices geared to the needs of migrant children. The university centers implement studies, disseminate information books on migrant education and plan migrant school programs.

Presently, these educational institutions are providing training and technical assistance to Title I, Migrant Schools.

Locations of the Bureau of Migrant Education Training and Technical Assistance are:

The New York State Migrant Center includes a wide range of activities related to migrants. The center sponsors studies on migrant education, a clearinghouse on migrant information and direct services to migrant families in the area.

The New York State Migrant Center (NYSMC) sponsors a summer program which assists migrant families during their working period.

Also available is the Teenage In-Camp Program which sends teachers to labor camps during the harvest season evenings. The teachers work with teenage migrants developing social interests and raising their educational levels. Instruction is compatible to the expressed needs, interests and priorities of the teenagers.

NYSMC offers a weekend program designed to provide education, recreation and a social life to participants. The program makes available field trips, movies and similar events.

Migrant children are provided with day care centers, clothing, meals and physical and dental exams.

The studies department conducts surveys designed to improve the education of migrant children. The Migrant Early Childhood Department works primarily in the area of training staff for the Migrant Child Care Center and ESEA Title I, Migrant Schools. The purpose of the training program is to provide coordination of programs and to update the professional training of all the staff personnel.

Migrant children in the day care centers range in age from eight weeks to fourteen years.

An Inservice Department conducts courses for area school districts that receive migrant children during the fall and spring semester.

The Vocational Education Department provides mobile units that instruct in auto-mechanics, tractor trailer training and building construction.

The New York State Migrant Center, housed at the State University College at Geneseo, operates Monday through Friday from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. During the peak months of June, July and August, the Center is open from 8:30 a.m. until 7 p.m., Monday through Sunday.

The New York State Migrant Child Care Program for Children of Seasonally Employed Agricultural Workers has been in existence since 1959, operating child care centers and day nurseries for migrants. The Department of Agriculture and Markets contracts with Department of Social Services to provide the initial physical exams and care for the children.

The purpose of the child care program is to help the migrant family with the supervision of infants while the older children and parents are working in the fields.

Health services, physical examinations, immunizations, sickle cell testing, vision testing, plus free eye-glasses are provided by the New York State Department of Health.

Dental services encompass complete treatment of dental care and follow-ups. Periodic visits by public health nurses with medical and dental follow-ups and preventative care insure constant medical attention for children placed in the day care centers.

Daily activities of indoor and outdoor play with intermediate rest periods and education are conducted at the centers.

Children are bused to and from the day care centers and provided a breakfast, hot noon-day meal, two snacks and supper when children remain late during their stay at the centers.

The children's ages range from eight weeks to fourteen years. The hours of operation may vary but usually are from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday through Friday, July through September.

Thirteen day care centers are housed within the migrant summer schools, coordinating their program services.

The following day care centers along with migrant summer school sites participate in the New York State Migrant Child Care Program.

Funding Sources: Program Funding, Inc., Department of Agriculture & Markets and County Department of Mental Health
Service Area: Orange County
Migrant Population Served: 1,500 (June-October)

The Warwick Area Migrant Committee was established in 1959 by the Warwick Council of Churches to assist rural poor in Orange County. Presently, the Migrant Committee has tapped into Program Funding, Inc., Department of Agriculture & Markets and the County Department of Mental Health funds to implement a range of supportative services to farmworkers. These include vocational training, health care, child care and mental health.

The vocational program trains personnel in the vocational area of their choice. Job placements and post-placement counseling are available upon completion of the training.

Health care is available throughout the year at the Migrant Labor and Family Clinic.

The following health care is available to farmworkers and their families: diagnosis and treatment, child and maternal health, pre- and post-partum care, physical examinations, immunizations and blood serology.

Also available are the following: health education training, diabetic screening, psychiatric evaluation, family counseling and a dental program for children.

A migrant committee is located at: Migrant Labor & Family Clinic
Mission Land Road
Pine Island (Orange County), N.Y. 10969
(914) 258-4037
(914) 258-4038

A social worker is available to help with medicaid, food stamps, public assistance and counseling services. When necessary, transportation is provided.

Hospitals that have contracted with the clinic are St. Anthony Community Hospital in Warwick, New York, Horton Memorial Hospital in Middletown, New York and Arden Hill Hospital in Goshen, New York.

There are two Day Care Centers which serve migrant children from two months to five years old. There is no fee for Day Care services.

Day Care Centers for the Migrant Committee are at the following sites:

County	Service Site
ORANGE	House on the Hill Broadlea Road Goshen, New York (914) 294-5340
	Migrant Day Care Center Mt. Alverno Convent 20 Grand Street Warwick, New York (914) 651-4272

The Warwick Area Migrant Committee operates a mental health program serving migrants and seasonal farmworkers in Orange County. Staffed by a psychiatric nurse in cooperation with the mental health center, program assistance involves alcoholic rehabilitation, crisis intervention and family counseling.

Program Funding, Inc. funds the ensuing education programs, High School Equivalency (HEP), English as a second language, consumer education and a tutoring program for migrant children enrolled in Title I, migrant schools.

Referrals from the Warwick Area Migrant Committee are forwarded to the State Hospital, employment service, school, day care centers, health clinic, legal services, social services and to the mental hospital center.

The major ethnic groups served by the Warwick Area Migrant Committee are composed of Mexican Americans, Southern Blacks, Puerto Rican and Filipinos. The Farmworkers' Community Center is open year-round, with peak months June through October, 9:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. and most evenings except Sunday.

Program Funding Incorporated (PFI) is a federally-funded, private, non-profit corporation serving migrant farmworkers in New York State since 1969. PFI, a major Title III-B program, covers twenty-two target counties; it funds a variety of program assistance to migrant and seasonal farmworkers. PFI has five local offices and two external contract delegate agencies, Project Reach and the Warwick Area Migrant Committee (Alamo), rendering program funds for manpower, education, day care, health care and social service assistance. The Title III-B, PFI coordinates with existing services available in the comminity to its program plan. The main thrust of PFI is manpower, economic upgrading to enable seasonally employed and poverty level (U.S.D.O.L. standards) farmworkers to move into fulltime, gainful employment.

PFI attains its manpower goals of economic upgrading and self-sufficiency through relocation, supportive services, pre-placement and post-placement counseling. Vocational training slots are purchased from private vocational institutions, with a complete follow-up on OJT counseling and placements. Program Funding Incorporated (PFI) seeks active involvement from civic organizations, business and industry to obtain labor placements for their trainess. Stipends of $2.00 per/hour for a minimum of fifteen to thirty-five hours maximum are paid to manpower trainees.

The education program ensures quality educational opportunities and vocational readiness for migrant and seasonal farmworkers to maximize participation of non-English speaking farmworkers. Farmworkers may take the GED curriculum under the education plan PFI locations at their disposal. Education assistance with tuition and placement in two or four year colleges aid farmworkers desiring to enroll. Consumer education, budgeting, health problems, shopping activities, equips farmworkers with the necessary skills to confront their new social surroundings.

PFI cooperates and contracts services to established educational institutions, Title I, Migrant Education, day care centers, Adult Basic Education, vocational centers and BOCES. (For further information on the above educational institutions see their respective agency project description.)

PFI works with the New York State Health Department through referrals and contracts medical assistance to county health departments. It also encourages health centers to develop and operate emergency medical care for migrant farmworkers during the harvest season. Medical and dental care is purchased utilizing local health professionals on a per clinic sessg n basis. Health assistance is referred to the Migrant Health Projects in New York State. (See Migrant Health Projects for medical assistance and location of service sites.)

Day care services are procured for children of migrant and sesaonal farmworkers when no other State funds can be acquired immediately. This aid will serve children whose parents are involved in at least one component of PFI Manpower Training Program and who decide to remain in New york State on a year-round basis.

The PFI staff assists farmworkers in obtaining emergency public assistance, food stamps and temporary medicaid. Emergency food and medical services (EFMS) is administered to migrants in emergency situations.

Project Reach and the Warwick Area Migrant Committee (Alamo), two external agencies from PFI, are contracted to deliver an extensice array of services: manpower, health education, day care and social sercices to migrants during the months of June to October.

The local PFI offices (5) function as an administrative network to the central PFI office in Rochester, contracting manpower training staff, with director, trainer, counselor, job developer and outreach recruiter. Supportive services and health care are obtained by contracting existing local and State agencies. PFI offices operate Monday through Friday, year-round, from 9:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m.

Migrant Population Served: 7,676 (peak June-September)

The New York State Department of Health administers thirteen Migrant Health Programs that render aid to migrant and seasonal farmworkers and their families.

These programs provide medical, dental, nursing, hospitalization, family planning, health education, nutrition and outreach assistance. Approximately 7,700 migrant farmworkers were helped with medical care in 1973.

The program's objective is to deliver high quality health care to migrants in fourteen counties in New York State.

The general health assistance furnished by the Migrant Health Projects cover physical examinations, immunizations, child and maternal health, pre-natal and post-partum care.

Other services include sickle-cell testing, pap smear, pediatric services, diagnostic and treatment, medical and dental screening plus an assortment of laboratory services.

Dental care includes preventative, therapeutic, restorative dental care and oral surgery and tooth, gum and mouth diagnosis. In addition, extraction and supportative care are provided. A dental hygienist handles emergency situations.

The nursing service provides maternal and child health care, communicable disease control, bedside care and general health care instruction. The nurses also work closely with outreach workers to insure optimum health care. Camp site visitation for medical follow-ups is part of the nurses' services.

The State Health Department employs eight nurses who work predominantly in the thirty-two migrant day care centers and labor camps.

Benefits extended by Medicaid offer migrant families a wide range of hospitalization care. (See Migrant Health Projects for information on hospitals in the respective areas.)

Referrals are made to community agencies which offer social services, medicaid, food stamps, legal aid, housing and employment.

Transportation is available to existing medical facilities to and from labor camps.

Migrants in need of medical and dental attention should approach their area Migrant Health Project when the occassion arises. There are no eligibility requirements, age limit or county residence stipulations to participate in these medical care programs.

The State Health Department approves proposals submitted to U.S.D.H.E.W. from established medical facilities for extended health care to migrant families. Supplementary medical attention and referral care is contracted to hospitals and state and community health agencies.

The Migrant Health Projects are open year round, Monday through Friday, 9:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. with peak months being July through September. (see evening hours for Clinics)

The Youth Program Funding, Inc.- Education Division
730 Powers Building - Suite 730
Rochester (Monroe County), New York 14614
(716) 546-7180

Funding Sources: U.S.D.O.L., N.Y.S. Bureau of Migrant Education
Service Area: Cattaraugus, Chautauqua, Columbia, Erie, Monroe, Niagara, Ontario, Orange, Orleans, Oswego, Steuben, Suffolk, Ulster, Wayne and Yates Counties
Migrant Population Served: 1,882 (June-November)

The Youth Education Division, a major component of Program Funding, Inc. (PFI), consolidates its educational resources to migrant and seasonal farmworkers in conjunction with PFI vocational projects and Regional PFI offices.

The educational component consists of the Learn & Earn Program, Reading is Fundamental, Literary Volunteer Program and College Assistance. Migrant adolescents (fourteen to twenty years of age) and migrant children (twelve years of age or sixth grade education level) participate in the Youth Education Program.

Learn & Earn Program focuses attention on providing work experience for migrant adolescents that will increase their knowlegge of other career opportunities available in the community. The Learn & Earn concept is linked into the migrant trainee vocational plan. A two-dollar stipend is paid to students under the vocational plan.

A mobile van library from "Reading is Fundamental" visits migrant program centers and labor camps supplying reading materials to migrants and seasonal farmworkers. The van also equips day care centers with reading booklets.

The recreational program looks for and develops physical activities outside the camp with field trips designed to expose the migrant families to American society.

Learning areas cover the ethnic backgrounds of the various cultures and enable the migrant child to study ethnic heritage in art, music and history. The recreation program functions throughout the summer and autumn months (June-November)

The goal of the Literary Volunteer Program is to improve the reading and writing skills of the migrant child and family members.

Volunteers assist migrant families in developing their skills through the use of the present Literary Teacher Training Workshop. Outreach workers recruit migrant and seasonal farmworker students to participate in the various programs that the Youth Education Division offers in New York State.

A college tuition assistance program is administered from the Program Funding, Inc. central office for those migrant and seasonal farmworker students who qualify at state universities. Any interested migrant student should contact PFI central office for further information in applying and qualifications needed to enroll at a university.

The Rural Manpower Service, a department under the New York State Manpower Service Division, implements complete placement recruitment assistance for farmworkers and employers in agriculture, food processing and other rural industries to insure that year round and seasonal labor requirements are met. Thirty-four temporary and full time Rural Manpower Offices service those counties with a high concentration of migrant and seasonal farmworker labor.

The Rural Manpower Office's principal duties are two-fold in task, recruiting workers for agricultural labor and issuing pertinent farm information.

Both Inter- and Intra-State farmworkers are recruited, referred and processed in compliance with the federal regulation guidelines. The Rural Manpower Office contacts outside State Employment Agencies and crew leaders for an adequate supply of farm labor during pre-harvest and harvest periods.

The Rural Manpower Service is responsible in overseeing that housing units furnished by growers to farmworkers meets the federal housing regulation. The Manpower Office insists on permanent certification on housing units by the State Health Department before an employer's job order is accepted for interstate clearance.

The Rural Manpower Office publishes and disseminates information on employment trends, crop activities, recruitment demands, wages and a weekly manpower bulletin during the harvest season (May-October). This publication includes all the above information.

An Agriculture Prevailing Wage Program surveys wages and working conditions regarding farmworkers on an annual basis or in a biennial rotation basis. This study can be useful in understanding the characteristics of agriculture and employment trends in New York State.

The following Manpower Offices are open Monday through Friday, year-round, with operating hours 8:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m.

The Migrant Division of the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, Department of Labor, represents the Puerto Rican Migrants while they are working in the U.S. mainland. This agency, along with the Puerto Rican Labor Department and representatives of the Growers Association, meet every January to negotiate a new contract for Migrant Labor. Wages, living conditions, health insurance, workmen's compensation and related employer-employee working conditions are stipulated in the contract. The Puerto Rican D.O.L. also works to insure compliance with contract regulations.

Auxiliary services administered by this agency include facilitating communication between migrant farmworkers and their families in Puerto Rico, supervising farmworkers transportation, inspection of labor camps and providing orientation to newly arrived Puerto Rican migrants.

The Migrant Division also promotes agricultural employment and enhances labor relations with State and federal governments and the growers.

The national office in New York City serves as an administrative office for eight field and regional offices, which include the following:

Legal Services may assist migrant farmworkers on request if problems should arise involving a migrant individual or family.

The Legal Services program was established by Congress in 1965, pursuant to the Economic Opportunity Act of 1964, to provide "legal advice and legal representation to persons when they are unable to afford the services of a private attorney, together with legal research and information as appropriate to mobilize the assistance of lawyers or legal institution or combination therefore to further the cause of justice among persons living in poverty."

The Monroe County Legal Assistance Corporation is presently the sixth largest Legal Services Program in the country.

The Legal Office has thirty-two lawyers, two VISTA lawers and field workers including students who offer legal assistance to clients.

Cases involving wage disputes, social security, health care, housing, credit, consumer fraud, employment, welfare, family breakdown and education are acted upon by the Legal Services Program.

The Monroe County Legal Services Corporation operates four projects:

A. The Mid-Hudson Valley Legal Services Project presently operates a neighborhood Legal Services office in Poughkeepsie and a Migrant Legal Services Program in Middletown.

B. The Flood Disaster Relief Project, with an office in Corning, provides legal services to the poor in the southern tier who have legal problems related to the floods from hurricane Agnes-June of 1972.

C. The Health and Nutritional Development Project, located in Rochester, provides representation for poor persons and groups with legal problems in the area of health and nutrition.

D. The Greater Upstate Law Project in Rochester provides technical assistance and advice in poverty law to local Legal Services projects throughout the state.

The Monroe County Legal Assistance Corporation in Rochester serves as the central office for the two legal service projects and the four branch offices.

Offices are in operation from Monday through Friday, on a year-round basis, 9:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m.

The National Committee on the Education of Migrant Children (NCEMC), established in 1963 works on the premise, "that we must educate the children of migrant farmworkers if they are to break the cycle of poverty."

The National Committee on the Education of Migrant Children provides consultation, clearinghouse and public information services on program projects, resources and research; fosters national, interstate and interagency project coordination through workshops and conferences for educators, health and social service personnel.

Studies with migrant children have let to two highly popular publications in 1971, Wednesday's Children and Children Labor in Agriculture. NCEMC participates in conferences, workshops, publications, fund raising, field trips and works with boards and committees of agencies dealing with the education of migrant children. NCEMC assists in the development of proposals, organizational structures on child care and teacher training programs.

NCEMC's impact on the national scene serves as a vanguard organization devoted to improving migrant education in the United States.

Office of Human Development (Migrant Ministry)

(716) 328-6400

Funding Sources: Migrant Ministry, New York State Council of Churches
Service Area: Livingston, Monroe, Steuben, Wayne and Yates Counties
Migrant Population Served: Information unavailable

The Office of Human Development does not offer direct services to migrants but contacts local parishes, agencies, county governments, etc., in planning services to migrant farmworkers. This office in conjunction with local parishes and a broad-based group of citizens supports efforts to welcome migrant farmworkers in the community and recreational activities. Another role of the program is advocacy for migrant legislation.

Emergency services such as food, money, clothing, shelter and transportation to health clinics and social services centers are available.

Contact personnel visit labor camps to learn the needs of migrants and to make referrals to existing local agencies that may provide care to these farmworkers.

The Office of Human Development's goals are to (1) stimulate vocational and educational programs (2) arrange religious services (3) enforce legislation covering farm labor regulations (4) coordinate state government and agencies serving migrant farmworkers.

The following officer are open Monday through Saturday during the months of May through October. There are no specific operational hours because of flexibility in the day time and evening hours during the Summer months.

Funding Sources: Program Funding Inc., U.S.D.H.E.W., State Department of Education, ESEA Title I, Migrant Education
Service Area: Cattaraugus, Chautauqua, Livingston, Ontario, Steuben, Wyoming and Yates Counties
Migrant Population Served: 1,232 (July-November)

Project Reach is an independent, community-based, non-profit organization founded in 1967 to assist poor rural area residents and migrant farmworkers. Program Funding, Inc. (PFI) funds Project Reach to provide services to migrant farmworkers on a year-round basis, reaching its peak service period in June through October.

The available services include vocational education, health services, day care, transportation, clothing and emergency food and medical services (EFMS).

Project Reach provides assistance in cooperation with local and state manpower agencies to migrant workers who desire to leave the migrant stream and settle into permanent employment. Specific assistance is provided in procuring job training, actual employment and counseling services.

In cooperation with other agencies, REACH helps to provide training for migrant workers in skilled areas such as child care, welding, auto mechanics, nurses aid, masonry and cashier sales.

A migrant health program operated by Project REACH provides evening medical clinics in the Cohocton Medical Center and evening dental sessions in Perkinsville. These evening clinical services are free of charge for migratory and seasonal farmworkers as well as any other community residents in need of such services and unable to obtain them from existing sources. These services are also available to the surrounding area towns.

The medical services are provided from August through November, 7:00 to 11:00 p.m.

The dental services are provided as follows:

City	Location	Months of Operation/Days
Geneseo	Day Children's Demonstration School	July - August
	Mobile Dental Unit	Four evenings per week
Perkinsville	Unavailable	August - November Monday & Wednesday
Rushville	Unavailable	July - December Tuesday & Thursday

The Migrant-Health Program is incorporated into Tri-County Family Medicine in the areas of administration (Medical Director), actual delivery of medical services and referrals for inpatient or specialty care.

Family oriented medical care, coupled with an efficient medical record system, enables each physician to have an overview of the health problems of each family unit or individual. Each family or individual is able to choose from any of the three available physicians. Patients are seen on a fee-for-service appointment basis. Emergency cases are taken immediately.

Tri-County Family Medicine is a non-profit community organization founded to deliver high quality preventive health care to all who need it. The practive delivers care in three sites: (1) Dansville Center - behind Noyes Memorial Hospital, Dansville (2) Cohocton Center - Park Avenue, Cohocton (3) Nunda Center - State Street, Nunda

In the area of day care, REACH provides services that incorporate the aspects of babysitting and teaching so as to provide a healthy environment and a learning experience for the child.

REACH Day Care Centers are located at the following sites:

County	City	Enrollment
ONTARIO	East Bloomfield	64
	Hall	13
STEUBEN	Avoca	22
	Wayland	27
WYOMING	Castile	54

The education component operates a tutoring program for school-age migrant children and an adult literacy program. Adult Basic Education (ABE) offers courses in auto mechanics, typing, welding, nurses aid and key punch operation.

The Advocate Outreach Worker focuses on the problems found in migrant camps by outreach staff. Problems such as transportation, labor, sickness, lack of adequate nutrition and others are dealt with.

Staff members of REACH and volunteers provide transportation for migrant workers to health facilities and other areas where people need to receive services by agencies and business.

Through a grant from the Department of Labor, funds are made available, on an emergency basis, to migrant families who have no monies for food or medical services.

Programs listed above are governed by the Farmworker Service Policy Board. Board membership consists of migratory and year-round farmworkers and community resource people.

Project REACH operates year-round, Monday through Friday, from 9:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m.

Cooperative Extension is a public service agency serving people through an informal educational program dedicated to extending knowledge of the New York State College of Agriculture, Life Science and the New York State College of Human Ecology.

Assistance is provided through a county professional staff backed by educators, researchers and program leaders from the colleges at Cornell University. Factual and practical information is used for decision-making and skill development in broad areas of nutrition education, consumerism, human development, family day care, population, community development and environmental quality. Also used are supportive comprehensive manpower, youth development, agriculture development and housing referrals to existing agencies.

Existing migrant programs use Cooperative Extension expertise in implementing a gamut of services which assist migrant and seasonal farmworkers.

Cooperative Extension service sites offer similar assistance in all the counties with the exception of Wayne County which operates a special pilot project devoted to the development of innovative programs to meet the needs of seasonal agricultural workers and their families. The special services under the pilot program include fundamental reading, youth development programs, assistance in self-help housing, school programs, day care, manpower, alcoholism rehabilitation and pesticide education.

In New York State, occupational education programs seek to meet the needs of migrant workers and their families through available area occupational education centers, operated by Boards of Cooperative Educational Services (BOCES). The State's system of occupational education includes a network of 74 area occupational centers, providing access to a broad selection of occupational programs for school-age persons (16-21) and adults.

The BOCES centers offer programs in the areas of agriculture, distribution and marketing; health services; home economics; business and office; trade, industrial, and service occupations; and technical occupations.

The programs are generally operated through a combination of State financial aid and funds provided by local school districts or other agencies contracting for services to individual students or group of students.

BOCES occupational programs are available to school-age members of migrant families through their attendance at local schools participating in the BOCES arrangement. Programs meeting special needs of migrant workers are often arranged through cooperation between BOCES administrations and organizations concerned with migrants.

Interdepartmental Committee on Migrant Labor
270 Broadway
New York (New York County), New York 10007
(212) 488-7620

Funding Sources: Personal contributions
Service Area: No direct services offered
Migrant Population Served: Information unavailable

The Interdepartmental Committee on Migrant Labor seeks to improve the delivery of services to migrant and seasonal farmworkers in New York State by identifying problems through the co-ordinated efforts of State and local migrant offices.

The Interdepartmental Committee is composed of interested individuals and agencies who work with migrants.

The task of the Committee is to make recommendations to the Governor in the areas of improved working conditions, housing facilities, health, child care, children's education and other areas which affect migrant and seasonal farmworkers.

The Migrant Alert System (MAS) is another project of the Interdepartmental Committee. This program assists migrants to solve their problems where local resources cannot. The Migrant Alert System has assisted migrants with problems of wages, housing conditions, camp inspections, Social Security benefits, child care and health problems. The telephone number for the MAS is (607) 773-7713.

An Annual Report is also published which lists State and local migrant programs in New York.

Planned Parenthood offices in New York State assist both the rural and urban area population. Migrant farmworkers may receive help from the Planned Parenthood offices on a sliding scale fee basis.

County residence eligibility is not necessary for any migrant farmworker desiring treatment or contraceptive material. The Planned Parenthood program dispenses a variety of contraceptive paraphenalia and conducts pregnancy tests.

An intake is performed by a nurse on the patient's medical and social history. A complete examination includes weighing and checking the patient's blood pressure; pap smear, urine, pregnancy and hemoglobin tests; and abdominal and pelvic examinations. If positive symptoms occur, patients are referred to private physicians whose fees can be paid under the Medicaid plan.

Outreach workers present educational film strips and workshops concerning contraceptive methods at clinics and social services centers.

Planned Parenthood offices are open year-round, Monday through Friday, 9:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. Clinics are held from 7:00 p.m. to 9:00 p.m. every evening.

Local public social services agencies provide public assistance and care to migratory seasonal farmworkers during the season in accordance with the same standards as apply to persons having New York State residence whose need is determined to be short-term.

The Medical Assistance Program in New York State offers medical care, services and supplies to persons in need of such care, and who are unable to meet the costs of all or part of their medical care. The Medical Assistance Program is administered by local County Departments of Social Services, and information and applications for Medical Assistance may be obtained from the local County Departments.

Emergency services for migrant families with children are all those services necessary to cope with emergency situations including information, referral, counseling, securing shelter for the family, child care (including day care and temporary foster care).

County Departments of Social Services supply food stamps to persons without immediate means of purchasing food commodities and who meet the eligibility requirements.

Migrant families with depleted funds are eligible to recieve free food stamps for thirty days, under the Zero Purchase Plan.

Complaints arising from unresponsive local Social Services Offices should be forwarded to the Food Assistance Program's main office in Albany.

The following County Social Services Offices are open Monday through Friday, year-round, with operational hours from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

The Western Monroe Community Project, a CAP agency, assists rural area poor, including migrant and seasonal farmworkers when other agencies' services have been exhausted.

The gamut of services include housing, day care, education, referrals, recreation, senior citizen aid and legal services.

Western Monroe Community Project works in conjunction with other agencies to assure adequate services for the client in areas that Western Monroe cannot provide.

Services are offered year-round, Monday through Friday, from 9:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. However, emergencies are handled twenty-four hours a day.

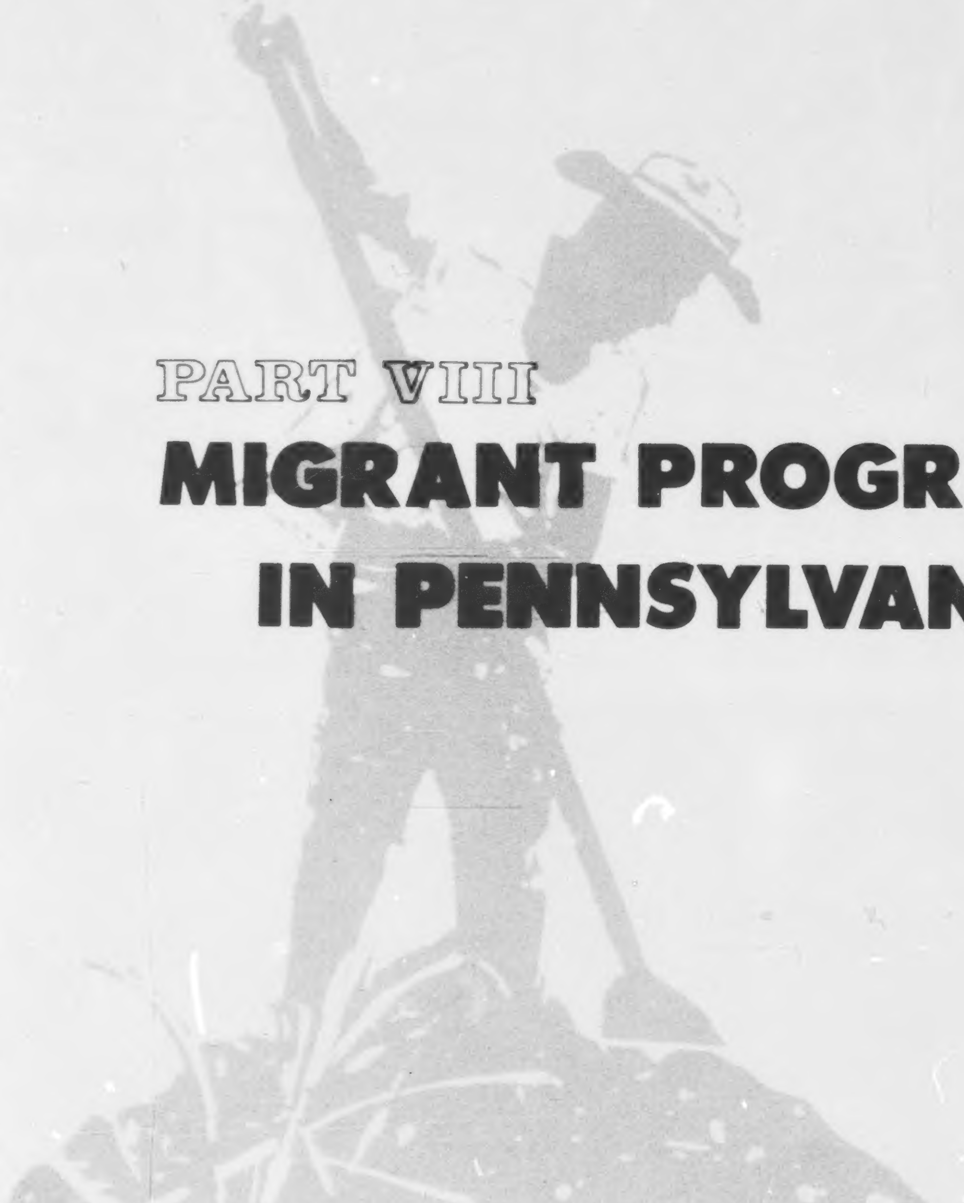
MIGRANT PROGRAMS IN PENNSYLVANIA



A. MIGRANT PROGRAMS FOR MIGRANT AND SEASONAL FARMWORKERS IN PENNSYLVANIA

DIRECT MIGRANT PROGRAMS

ESEA Title I, Migrant Education
Pennsylvania Department of Education (PDE)
Box 911
Harrisburg (Dauphin County), Pennsylvania 17126
(717) 787-7135

Funding Sources: U.S.D.H.E.W.; ESEA Title I, Migrant
Service Area: Adams, Berks, Bucks, Chester, Columbia, Dauphin, Erie, Franklin, Fulton, Lackawanna, Lancaster, Lebanon, Luzerne, Monroe, Montgomery, Montour, Northumberland, Schuylkill, Snyder, Union, Wyoming and York Counties
Migrant Population Served: 829 (1973 Annual Report)

As amended in 1966, ESEA Title I Migrant specifically includes children of migratory workers. Title I Migrant programs and services are performed and directed by the Department of Education.

Educational activities implemented under Title I Migrant are designed to meet the special needs of migrant children and to strengthen educational programs for them. The program of instruction includes language arts, reading, mathematics, social studies, science, art, physical education, health instruction, counseling, field trips and recreational activities.

Additionally, Title I Migrant provides specifically designed activities which will increase the migrant child's social growth, positive self-concept and group interaction skills. For the older migrant child the curriculum includes programs that will improve academic skills, prevocational orientations and vocational skill training.

Furthermore, the Department of Education has tutorial assistance and participates in the Migrant Student Record Transfer System (MSRTS). As a result, the students' chances of a proper sequence and continuity in their total education are enhanced.

Participation in Title I Migrant programs generally occurs from March through November. Normally, services are available from 8:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. Monday through Friday, and are conducted at the following schools:

Health and Medical Services for Seasonal Agricultural Workers (HMS/SAW)
P.O. Box 90
Harrisburg, (Dauphin County), Pennsylvania 17120
(717) 787-6957

Funding Sources: Pennsylvania Department of Health
Service Area: Adams, Berks, Columbia, Cumberland, Dauphin, Erie, Franklin, Lackawanna, Lancaster, Lehigh, Luzerne, Lycoming, Monroe, Montour, Northumberland, Potter, Schuylkill, Snyder, Union, Wyoming and York Counties
Migrant Population Served: 1,870 (1972 Annual Report).

The Health and Medical Services (HMS) program provides medical and physiological services directly to migrant and seasonal farmworkers. HMS has established three service sites especially for migrants. These three sites cover an eight-county area. The remaining counties are covered through contracts with local hospitals or physicians on a fee-for-service basis.

The program calls for a comprehensive diagnostic, preventive and corrective treatment. Among these are medical examinations, laboratory, pharmaceutical, dental and visual health services. Transportation to and from clinics may also be available, as well as referrals and follow-up.

Migrant labor camps are inspected for sanitary conditions and programs on hygiene and nutrition are also provided by HMS.

Participating clinics generally offer similar services, however, the hours of operation differ. These clinics and their available times are listed on the following pages.

Pennsylvania Council of Farmworkers, Inc. (PCFI)
1521 North Sixth Street
Harrisburg (Dauphin County), Pennsylvania 17102
(717) 232-1994

Funding Sources: U.S.D.o.L., U.S.O.E.O., Title III-B
Service Area: State of Pennsylvania
Migrant Population Served: Information unavailable

The Pennsylvania Council of Farmworkers, Inc. (PCFI) is the grantee of statewide programs designed to meet the special needs of migrant and seasonal farmworkers in Pennsylvania. PCFI has five regional area councils. The regional area councils each have one or more target areas where assistance is rendered to the farmworkers.

The program is a multi-faceted systems design of outreach, referral and follow-up that will hopefully improve the migrant and seasonal farmworkers social and economic conditions. This is done by coordinating with existing migrant programs in education, training, manpower development, justice and health.

Where no programs exist, PCFI attempts to set up and develop comprehensive plans for farmworkers with the assistance of consultants and technical experts.

The activities of PCFI are directed by the Board of Directors and the Dauphin county office and are generally carried out by outreach workers throughout the state. The outreach workers assess the needs and desires of migrant and seasonal farmworkers on a year-round basis.

OTHER PROGRAMS THAT PROVIDE SERVICES FOR MIGRANTS

Rural Manpower Services (RMS)
Seventh & Forster Streets
Harrisburg (Dauphin County), Pennsylvania 17102
(717) 787-6557

Funding Sources: U.S.D.O.L.
Service Area: Adams, Berks, Bucks, Chester, Columbia, Cumberland, Dauphin, Franklin, Lackawanna, Lancaster, Lehigh, Luzerne, Montour, Northumberland, Schuylkill, Snyder and Wyoming Counties.
Migrant Population Served: Information unavailable

Rural Manpower Services (RMS) for migrant and seasonal farmworkers are generally provided through the local employment agencies where there is a concentration of farmworkers.

There are no special departments in the local offices that handle services for migrant and seasonal farmworkers. Usually a RMS representative or someone from the employment agency is assigned to assist farmworkers.

An important RMS project is the recruitment of farmworkers. This is done after farmers have requested workers for the crops. The recruitment process is carried on with the following established goals in mind:

1. To serve the rural community in accordance with existing laws and regulations.
2. To utilize the resident work force to its greatest extent in the production of food and fiber.
3. To collect, analyze and disseminate information pertaining to the rural labor market.
4. To suggest effective solutions to labor problems affecting the rural community.
5. To provide equity of access to all rural residents and employers to all Employment Service programs.

Additional assistance included by RMS consists of outreach and referral services, inspection of migrant labor camps and dissemination of information concerning the availability of work and wages in the State of Pennsylvania.

RMS provides services throughout the year. The following service sites are for areas where there is normally a concentration of migrant and seasonal farmworkers.

County	Service Site
ADAMS	RMS 39 West Street Gettysburg, Pennsylvania 17325 (717) 334-1173

Rhode Island has forty Puerto Rican migrants under contract, working on nursery sites. The medical and housing facilities are provided by the grower. The Puerto Rican contract migrant comes without his family to Rhode Island.

Rhode Island has no farm placement office due to the fact that the demand for agricultural labor is minimal. The small amount of agriculture employment in the State is supplied by local labor.

MIGRANT PROGRAMS IN VERMONT

A. MIGRANT PROGRAMS FOR MIGRANT AND SEASONAL FARMWORKERS IN VERMONT

The State of Vermont has relatively few migrant farmworkers due to the low level of agricultural activity.

Farmworkers are recruited primarily from Canada and the British West Indies and are usually single males.

Apples are the only crop utilizing manual labor, which are harvested during the months of September and October.

Medical and other related services to migrant farmworkers is provided by the employers.

Migrant farmworker service programs are non-existent in Vermont with the exception of the Title I-Migrant Education.

MIGRANT PROGRAMS IN PUERTO RICO

INTRODUCTION

Puerto Rico is the home for a substantial number of migrant farmworkers in the United States. According to statistics provided by the Farm Placement Division of the Department of Labor of Puerto Rico, there were 14,641 farmworkers working under contracts in the United States in 1973. It is also estimated that almost the same number travel to work without the benefit of contracts. Although Puerto Rican migratory workers work on farms in several states of the Eastern seaboard, the largest numbers may be found in the states of New Jersey, Massachusetts, Connecticut, Delaware and New York. Some of these States depend almost entirely on Puerto Rico for their farm labor requirements.

Concerning the living and working conditions of Puerto Rican farmworkers in the United States, the Bureau of Employment Security had this to say in its 1972 Annual Farm Labor Report:

> "There is a need for improvement by agricultural associations and individual employers (in) salaries, subsistence, housing, sanitary conditions, food, end of the season bonus, recreational and other facilities. Especially, it is a must that housing conditions meet not only high safety standards, but be reasonably comfortable. The workers are becoming aware of these differences among employers and prefer to wait for recruitments (from) employers which offer better working and living conditions."

In November 1973, ATA (Asociacion de Trabajadores Agricolas), with offices in Hartford, Connecticut and Vineland, New Jersey, was created to organize Puerto Rican farmworkers in the United States. On December 18, 1973, ATA and three Puerto Rican farmworkers filed suit on behalf of themselves and other migrants against Puerto Rico's Governor and Secretary of Labor. The issue is the constitutionality of Law 87 and related regulations which govern the recruitment of farmworkers. The Civil Rights Action seeks to convene a three judge panel to bring injunctions against the defendant Commonwealth officials to prevent them from implementing and enforcing the provisions of the law. The case is still in the courts; meanwhile, the Secretary of the Department of Labor has negotiated contracts for 1974.

Agriculture continues to be an element of major importance in the life of Puerto Ricans. The size of the Island makes it imperative to utilize the scarce land efficiently for an intense and commercialized agriculture. There has been an effort to provide farmers with the technology and incentives to keep agriculture in a state of constant improvement. Intensive methods of farming and high levels of mechanization have been introduced. Although the results have contributed substantially to the economy of the Island, they have also brought about a decline in farm labor requirements. Thus, the unemployment rate among farmworkers in Puerto Rico continues to increase.

Migrant programs in Puerto Rico provide basic educational, health, legal and job placement services to farmworkers. Some of these render services not only while farmworkers are in Puerto Rico during the winter months, but during the summer months in the United States as well.

The information presented here was obtained almost entirely from federally funded agencies and programs in Puerto Rico during February 1974. Therefore, it is the latest available information from the Island itself. An effort has also been made to authenticate as much of the information obtained as possible.

COMMONWEALTH OF PUERTO RICO

MIGRANT PROGRAMS IN THE COMMONWEALTH OF PUERTO RICO

Interstate Farm Placement Program

(809) 765-1280

Funding Sources: U.S.D.O.L. and the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico
Service Area: Puerto Rico, New York, New Jersey, South Carolina, Delaware, Maryland, Pennsylvania, Connecticut, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Maine, New Hempshire, Illinois, Wisconsin, Indiana, Minnesota and Virginia
Migrant Population Served: 14,641 (1973)

The recruitment policies and programs of the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico in relation to the promotion, interviewing, referral and placement of workers in the agricultural areas, are carried out by the Rural Manpower Services of the Bureau of Employment Security, Department of Labor of Puerto Rico. The Rural Manpower Service is one of the Bureau's four divisions and also includes the Interstate Program to provide workers with gainful employment in farms and marginal occupations in the continental United States.

The government of Puerto Rico established in 1948 the Migration Division of the Department of Labor. It specifically mandated that it oversee the annual out-flow of Puerto Rican farmworkers. The Secretary of Labor, under Law 87, has the authority to negotiate the contracts and to establish the norms and conditions under which Puerto Rican farmworkers will work outside the Island.

Services provided include inspection of housing and working conditions, orientation to the migrant worker and to the employer, handling and processing wage claims and complaints, helping the farmworker on job accidents and occupational illness, claims and group plan, supervision of assignment and transferences of farmworkers under contracts, dealing with labor-employer problems, handling social problems of the farmworker, farmwork promotion, attending meetings and conferences, coordinating services between state and federal agencies dealing with migrant workers.

Service Area: San Juan, Humacao, Bayamon, Utuado and Arecibo
Migrant Population Served: 336 (September 28, 1973 to January 31, 1973)

Every year over 60,000 Puerto Ricans travel to work in the farms of the States of New Jersey, Massachusetts, Connecticut and Florida. About half of them go to work with contracts and the other half without contracts. Because the terms and conditions of the contracts are not always kept and it is difficult for the migrants to return to Puerto Rico, the Migrant Division of Legal Services of Puerto Rico was created in 1973. Legal services for migrants include assistance with contract violations, wage claims, housing, unemployment compensation, workmen's compensation, salaries, working conditions and food stamps. Services are offered on a year round basis following the migrant stream.

Funding Sources: U.S.D.H.E.W. and the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico
Service Area: Northeast part of the Island
Migrant Population Served: 6,428 (1972-73).

One of the main objectives of the program is to offer major comprehensive health services to migrant families in nine municipalities of the Northeast Health Region. Namely, Bayamon, Toa Alta, Dorado, Toa Baja, Catano, Guaynabo, Trujillo Alto, Carolina and San Juan (including Rio Piedras). Through this effort the health services to migrant families would be extended beyond the original two municipalities, Bayamon and Aibonito.

To accomplish its objectives, the program seeks to integrate migrant family health care into the already existing comprehensive health services of the Puerto Rico Department of Health Area and Sub-regional hospital facilities.

Services provided include initial interview and history taking on all patients, orientation about program services and general health promotion, collection of specimens for routine laboratory work and preparation of pertinent forms, introduction of patient to clinic physician, administration of immunizations, dispensing of prescribed medications, interpretation of physician's orders, orientation about appointments, processing of referrals, follow-up interview and progress notes reporting all re-visits to clinic, home visits for orientation, follow-up and assessment and health education.

Services are offered on a year-round basis, Monday through Friday with a 24 hour emergency room service.

Service center sites for this program are located at:

Service Area: Mayaguez, San Sebastian and Las Marias
Migrant Population Served: 6,424 (1972-73)

The general and main objective of this program is to provide optimal comprehensive health care to agricultural migrants and their families in two selected areas of the Western Health Region, Commonwealth of Puerto Rico. Services to Las Marias were incorporated to extend medical facilities to migrants in that area. Services provided include complete history and physical examination on the migrant and his dependents to serve as a baseline for future service, basic laboratory tests on all new patients, immunizations, walk-in medical help for diagnosis and treatment, appointments for follow-up visits, and dental services for the migrant and his dependents. The Mayaguez clinic offers its service from 8:00 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Friday.

METHODOLOGY

In order to acquire and compile data for this report, a standard research design was implemented. This included research from central information sources, on site visits and final documentation of information.

PRELIMINARY RESEARCH - Preliminary information on Puerto Rico was obtained by utilizing the Department of Labor-Migration Division, Puerto Rican State agencies, and local social agencies. From correspondence with these agencies, migrant programs were identified.

Additionally funding proposals of Title III-B programs, agricultural and manpower reports and statistical data were at our disposal. After identification of migrant programs, contacts were made by phone or mail to verify their existence and operation.

ON SITE VISITS Programs and agencies visited on site were designated according to the amounts of information which were available. During one week period, the following state agencies were visited: Department of Labor of Puerto Rico-Migration Division, Legal Services of Puerto Rico-Migration Division, Western Health Project, and High School Equivalency Program. Contacts were also made with Puerto Rico's Department of Instruction, Mision Industrial and A.T.A. (Asociacion de Trabajadores Agricolas de Puerto Rico.)

FINAL DOCUMENTATION OF INFORMATION - All information gathered from field visits, correspondence and research was compiled on agency profile forms designed for this type of research. From these information forms, data was edited and compiled into the resulting report.

APPENDIX

METHODOLOGY

The information which appears on this report was compiled, analyzed and processed according to a standard research design which was developed by Clearinghouse staff members. This included preliminary research from central information sources, on-site visits, identification of data base and final documentation of information.

PRELIMINARY RESEARCH. Preliminary information on these states was obtained by first utilizing the library resources of the National Migrant Information Clearinghouse. Numerous mailing lists, annual reports and funding proposals were consulted. After the identification of major migrant programs, a verification process was implemented in which these programs were contacted by phone in order to verify any items of information that may have been in doubt. The telephone contacts were also very useful in that we were often referred to other agencies or projects of which we had no prior knowledge. This particular process allowed us to make initial contact with many central sources of information for follow-up at a later date.

ON-SITE VISITS. On-site visits were made to numerous agencies in an effort to obtain detailed first hand information on the nature and types of services available to migrant farmworkers in each state. The most current farm labor statistics and data on wages, migrant population, crops, legislation, etc. were also sought. Such visits were limited by time, and generally speaking, were made only to those Federal, State, and local agencies considered central or headquarters offices for other projects or programs.

IDENTIFICATION OF DATA BASE. After all preliminary information had been accumulated and verified, and after all on-site visits had been conducted, counties to be included in the book were established according to the following criteria:

1. Existence of a migrant program, or
2. Inclusion in the service area of a migrant program, or
3. Significant (over 100) migrant population during any season.

For purposes of determining what constitutes a "migrant program", considerable discussion on the subject was necessary among staff members. This resulted in the following classifications of assistance programs which appear in the book:

1. "Migrant Programs in County" include any project whose service components are geared solely towards the needs of migrant or seasonal farmworkers.
2. "Other Programs that Provide Services to Migrants" covers agencies which have at least one service component for migrants as part of a much larger program.
3. "Agencies Which May Assist Migrants" are service agencies, projects or organizations whose target populations are the poor, the disadvantaged, and the minorities. Such agencies generally have no special provisions for providing services to migrant families, but often render services if the eligibility requirements are met.

The purpose for resorting to the above classifications of programs was not to subjectively brand programs according to what they do or do not do, but rather to provide the basis for an orderly presentation of the information to the reader and to avoid a confused random arrangement of the material. As is evident, migrant services are the basis for priority in the presentation.

FINAL DOCUMENTATION OF INFORMATION. All information gathered from field visits, correspondence, and research was documented on agency and county profile forms designed and developed specifically for this project. From these profile forms, data was edited and compiled into the resulting report.
